Asynchronous online courses occur through online channels without real-time interaction and are taught 100% online, but do not have an assigned meeting time for the course. When you register for an asynchronous course in MyNIU, it will indicate the course is online (100%) asynchronous where the "room" is listed. There will not be listed course meeting times.

Crime & Mental Illness: This course focuses on the study of crime, violence, and mental illness. We will first discuss different types of mental illness. We will then examine research on public perceptions of violence and stigma associated with mental illness, and mental illness in mass media. Next, we will... examine research on how mental illness is related to crime and violence, including the role of deinstitutionalization, the prevalence of mental illness in jails and prisons, and how violence occurs in neighborhoods and families. Finally, we will discuss legal and treatment issues, including the role of police, courts, and community programs.

Torture & Police Violence: Torture and police brutality are illegal under international and domestic law but are practiced throughout the world, even in democratic countries. This course begins with case studies of torture by the police in late 20th century Chicago, torture in US-occupied Iraq in the early 21st century, and police violence against African-Americans in contemporary times. It then uses theories from sociology, criminology and social psychology to explain why and how torture and police violence happen. Additional readings examine the history and law of torture, the effects of torture on survivors, perpetrators and societies, and possible solutions to prevent and abolish torture.

Sociology of Race & Ethnicity: "The problem of the twentieth century is the problem of the color line," is the oft-quoted line from W.E.B Du Bois which will serve as the starting point for this course. Issues of race and ethnicity are just as relevant today, perhaps because of the ever-shifting boundaries... that come in to play when dealing with issues such as race and ethnicity. This course will examine the various ways that race and ethnicity play a role in our lives as individuals and as a society. We will examine topics ranging from the biological to the social, from the age of conquest to today, and from the personal to the institutional.

This course presents a chronological and thematic study of six millennia of the arts and architecture in China, Japan, India and Southeast Asia, including burial arts from the neolithic through the T'ang dynasty, and encompassing Buddhist and Taoist ritual arts, painting, calligraphy, sculpture, ceramics, prints, garden design and architecture. We will study works in a wide variety of media — jade, bronze, wood, lacquer, silk, ceramics and paper — examining their emergence within their historical, religious and cultural contexts, as well as the persistent influence of their creation within the cultural and archeological setting. This course has no pre-requisites, and no previous exposure to Asian art is necessary. This course satisfies PLUS (Creativity and Critical Analysis) requirements and is included in the Global Connections Pathway. This course is required for art history majors.

This course explores the art, architecture and archaeology of ancient Rome, "the eternal city," and the 6.5 million km. of empire that it ruled between the first and fifth centuries CE. The flowering of art and architecture in Europe after the year 1000 is conventionally referred to using the terms Romanesque and Gothic. In this course we will address the origin, meaning and usefulness of these terms. We will consider the roles of pilgrimage, monasticism, and the papacy in shaping architecture during the eleventh and twelfth centuries, the origin of the style called Gothic in the Île de France, the age of great cathedrals, the we will address the origin, meaning and usefulness of these terms. The 15th century in Italy was a time of intense creativity and innovation. This course explores the culture and the visual arts produced during this period. The lectures will proceed roughly chronologically, and the focus will be on individual artists and their accomplishments. The course will focus on the main centers of artistic production (Florence, Venice, Rome) but will also explore more peripheral spaces (Mantua, Ferrara, Siena). There will be an emphasis on careful looking and detailed study of major works of art. Students will also have ample opportunity to practice articulating what they see and relating it to the historical and social contexts of the period, both in spoken and written form. ARTH 330A satisfies PLUS (Society and Culture) requirements, is included in the Origins and Influences Pathway, and has been certified as "Writing Infused."
This course examines topics in the world history of graphic design, illustration, and new media from the nineteenth century to the present, with an emphasis on cross-cultural, international, and trans-national exchange. We will examine the relationship between art, design, and history from numerous points of view, including those of contemporary designers, critics, and historians. ARTH 362 satisfies PLUS (Creativity and Critical Analysis) requirements and is included in the Global Connections Pathway.

This course examines concepts of identity, debates about the personal and social character and construction of identity, the politics of identity, and current rejections of those politics, as they manifest in visual art and film from the mid-nineteenth century to now. We will build a comprehensive knowledge of different concepts of identity with readings beyond art history (e.g., Foucault’s concepts of authorial and sexual identities, Hеbdige on subculture, Girl culture).

The arts of Southeast Asia reflect a great variety of religions inextricably linked with the natural world which surrounded them: whether through traditional themes or contemporary artistic and exhibition practice which utilize materials from the immediate environment. This topic will be elaborated through ways in which the countries of mainland and insular Southeast Asia culture and society have interacted in the past, and respond today to the environment through varied modes of artistic creation and self-expression. This course will explore classical architecture, sculpture, painting, and prints; and more recently, contemporary film and performance pieces: revealing how artists have engaged with nature on issues of religion; reflecting on post-conflict aesthetics, delineating identities towards offering more nuanced and complex expressions of the human condition. Our goal here is to analyze how art embodies the co-evolution of social, cultural, and physical complex landscapes of Southeast Asia.

Ranging from the sixteenth century to the present, this course will survey the variety of methods art historians and cultural theorists have developed in order to determine what are the proper objects of the discipline and how best to fashion a comprehensive history for these objects.

This course examines concepts of identity, debates about the personal and social character and construction of identity, the politics of identity, and current rejections of those politics, as they manifest in visual art and film from the mid-nineteenth century to now. We will build a comprehensive knowledge of different concepts of identity with readings beyond art history (e.g., Foucault's concepts of authorial and sexual identities, Hebdige on subculture, Girl culture).

The arts of Southeast Asia reflect a great variety of religions inextricably linked with the natural world which surrounded them: whether through traditional themes or contemporary artistic and exhibition practice which utilize materials from the immediate environment. This topic will be elaborated through ways in which the countries of mainland and insular Southeast Asia culture and society have interacted in the past, and respond today to the environment through varied modes of artistic creation and self-expression. This course will explore classical architecture, sculpture, painting, and prints; and more recently, contemporary film and performance pieces: revealing how artists have engaged with nature on issues of religion; reflecting on post-conflict aesthetics, delineating identities towards offering more nuanced and complex expressions of the human condition. Our goal here is to analyze how art embodies the co-evolution of social, cultural, and physical complex landscapes of Southeast Asia.

Asynchronous online courses occur through online channels without real-time interaction and are taught 100% online, but do not have an assigned meeting time for the course. When you register for an asynchronous course in MyNIU, it will indicate the course is online (100%) asynchronous where the "room" is listed. There will not be listed course meeting times.
